Which have been CONSTANTLY PRESCRIBED by the MOST EMINENT PHYSICIANS with great success for the last TWENTY YEARS.

SIMPLE PHOSPHORUS PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 5), containing 1-20th gr. Phosphorus.
Dr. KIRBY says: "Experience fully warrants the administration of Phosphorus in this dose" in severe attacks of Neuralgia and cases of extreme Nervous Exhaustion; it gives excellent results, taken with food three or four times a day.

PHOSPHORUS AND QUININE PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 3), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus.
This is a valuable combination of two powerful restoratives. As a nutrient tonic it gives power to the brain and spinal cord, imparts tone to the digestive organs, increases functional activity and improves the condition of the whole system. It is largely employed in India during convalescent stages of intermittent and remittent fevers. It is an excellent remedy for Malaise Induced by the climate, and is a good prophylactic against Malaria.

PHOSPHORUS AND IRON PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 7), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus.
This is given with great advantage in Anæmia, Sciatica, and other Neuralgic affections, also in the treatment of convalescence from fever and other debilitating diseases. It is an excellent chemical food for anæmic children, and a good adjuvant to a course of cod liver oil.

PHOSPHORUS AND NUX VOMICA PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula No. 6), containing 1-33rd gr. Phosphorus.
This combination is useful in all the cases named above, but especially in cases of feeble digestion and loss of power, following excesses. Taken regularly with food for a few weeks it has a powerfully renovating effect on broken-down constitutions.

PHOSPHORUS, QUININE AND NUX VOMICA PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 4), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus.
The use of this combination will be gathered from what has been said of the previous Formulæ, Nos. 3 and 6.
For a similar combination with Iron, see No. 9.

COMPOUND PHOSPHORUS PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 9), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus, with Iron, Quinine and Strychnia.
This combination of nerve tonics has a very large application It is efficacious in all disorders which are characterised by impoverished blood and diminished nerve power, especially in that low condition of the general health which is induced by overwork, dissipation, and excesses of various kinds. In this state Iron and phosphorus is strongly indicated. In Constitutional Syphilis it has a high remedial power, by improving the condition of the blood and by stimulating its regenerative power. It is exceedingly energising and strength-giving. As a tonic for convalescents recovering from fever and other exhausting diseases it is unequalled.

STRONG PHOSPHORUS, IRON, QUININE AND NUX VOMICA PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 17), containing 1-25th gr. Phosphorus.
This is double the strength of No. 9 as regards Phosphorus and Quinine, and therefore should be prescribed only in cases where the larger dose of Phosphorus is needed.

PHOSPHORUS, CANTHARIDES & NUX VOMICA PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 20), containing 1-33rd gr. Phosphorus.
This pill produces no irritation of the gastro-intestinal mucous membrane, but operates as a gentle stimulant to the genito-urinal organs. It is especially useful in premature failure of power, induced by passive discharges due to debility. It is useful also as a stimulating emmenagogue in obstinate cases of Amenorrhœa, Leucorrhœa, and Atony of the Uterus.
Formula No. 20 contains Iron, and as a tonic is most suitable for feeble, anæmic females.

PHOSPHORUS AND DAMIANA PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 34), containing 1-33rd gr Phosphorus.
The Extract in this pill is made from the Tree Damiana Plant ("Turnera Aphrodisiaca"), and is a valuable aid to Phosphorus when required as a remedy for impotence.

The above may be obtained from our appointed Agents, in Bottles, 3/-, 5/- and 10/- each (Englishmoney), the 10/- Bottle containing sufficient for a course of four weeks. DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S
CHLORODYNE,
THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.
ADVICE TO INVALIDS.—If you wish to obtain quiet, refreshing sleep, free from headache, relief from pain and anguish, to calm and assuage the weary achings of protracted disease, invigorate the nervous media, and regulate the circulating systems of the body, you will provide yourself with that marvellous remedy discovered by Dr. J. Collis Browne late Army Medical Staff), to which he gave the name of CHLORODYNE, and which is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.
CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma
CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhœa and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.
CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms.
CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.
From Symes & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Medical Hall, Simla, January 5, 1891, to J. T. Davenport, Esq., 3 Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London. "Dear Sir,—We embrace this opportunity of congratulating you upon the widespread reputation this justly esteemed medicine, Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne, has earned for itself not only in Hindostan, but all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported into the country, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and judging from their sale, we fancy their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances ad infinitum of the extraordinary efficacy of Dr. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne in Diarrhœa and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnance, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Cholera, in Diarrhœa and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power. We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a DELIBERATE BREACH OF FAITH ON THE PART OF THE CHEMIST TO PRESCRIBER AND PATIENT ALIKE. We are, Sir, faithfully yours, Symes & Co., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemist."
CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood states that Dr. J. Collis Browne was, undoubtedly, the Inventor of Chlorodyne; that the story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately un true, which he regretted to say, had been sworn to.—See "The Times," July 13, 1864.
Sold in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne" on the Government stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle.
CAUTION:—Beware of Piracy and Imitation. Sole Manufacturer—J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Russell's Street, Bloomsbury, London.

DR. DE ROOS'
COMPOUND RENAL PILLS.
Are a safe and speedy Remedy for the above dangerous complaints, Discharges and Diseases of the Urinary Organs generally, which too frequently harass the sufferer over the best years of life, and end only in an agonising death. For weakness across the loins, sandy or other deposit in the water, and in all cases of renal or urinary disturbance, they are, indeed, unrivalled. They correct acidity of the stomach, and promote the functions of the kidneys, thereby preventing stone in the bladder, &c. Many complaints, long supposed to be nervous, often arise solely from contamination of the blood with certain impurities which should have been carried off by the kidneys. Thousands of testimonials from grateful Patients attest their marvellous efficacy. In packages, 2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d.

PILULÆ VITÆ, OR VEGETABLE LIFE PILLS.
The most wonderful Pills in the world for Indigestion, Biliousness, and all Disorders of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels. Their action is mild yet effectual; they do not gripe or purge, and for habitual costiveness, loss of appetite, disturbed sleep, harassing dreams, wind, indigestion, sick headache, furred tongue, unpleasant taste in the mouth on rising in the morning, sallowness, scurvy, pimples, blotches, boils, &c., they are of unexampled efficacy; and being prepared solely from the vegetable kingdom, may be taken by the most delicate of either sex, equally with the robust, merely regulating the dose according to the printed directions accompanying each box.
Those who are subject to occasional attacks of Biliousness instead of resorting to the old-fashioned blue pill and nauseous black draught, will do well to keep a box of these Pills by them, and never leave home without them: an attack may thus be nipped in the bud by taking a dose or two, which, if allowed to run its course for a few days, would probably almost completely prostrate its unhappy victim. Sold in boxes at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d.

WORLD-FAMED GUTTAE VITAE,
OR LIFE DROPS.
The Great European Remedy for Nervous and Functional Debility, Spermatorrhœa, &c.
This remarkable rejuvenating essence strengthens the vitality of the whole system, gives energy to the muscles, and speedily restores the impaired powers of life, imparting strength and manly vigour to the most debilitated and worn out constitution. Those who suffer from Premature Decay, or deficiency of the Vital Forces owing to long residence in India, or any other cause, will find this medicine just what they require. Equally adapted for the studious and sedentary; the aged and infirm; the nervous and debilitated; as also for delicate females and weakly children. All sufferers from loss of appetite, nervous headache, lassitude, and despondency—too often accompanied with suicidal thoughts—should make immediate and fair unprejudiced trial of this wonderful medicine, which is daily effecting the most remarkable cures in patients who had been given up by the faculty. In all cases of nervous and functional debility (arising from whatever cause), it is truly unrivalled. To married persons especially, this preparation will prove invaluable, giving strength and vigour in place of lassitude and incapacity.—Price, 11s. or four times that quantity, 33s. per bottle.
Dr. De Roos' Medicines are sold by all the Principal Chemists and Merchants in India. Purchasers are particularly requested to see that every package bears the British Government Stamp, with the words "WALTER DE ROOS, LONDON," impressed thereon in white letters on a red ground, and refuse worthless imitations frequently put forward by unscrupulous vendors for the sake of extra profit.

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION.
PULVERMACHER'S WORLD-FAMED GALVANIC BELTS, for the cure of NERVOUS COMPLAINTS, have received Testimonials from THREE PHYSICIANS TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN and the leading Physicians of Nine London Hospitals, including Forty Members of the Royal College of Physicians of London.
The distressing symptoms of NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, loss of MUSCULAR POWER, RHEUMATISM, SCIATICA, PARALYSIS, EPILEPSY, &c., are speedily removed by means of Pulvermacher's World-famed Galvanic Belts, which convey the electric current direct to the affected parts, gradually stimulating and strengthening all the nerves and muscles, and speedily arresting all symptoms of premature waste and decay.
Dr. C. HANDFIELD JONES, F.R.C.P., F.R.S., Physician to St. Mary's Hospital, says: "I am satisfied that Mr. PULVERMACHER is an honest and earnest labourer in the field of science, and I think he deserves to meet with every encouragement from the profession and scientific men."
Sir CHARLES LOCOCK, Bart., M.D., Physician to Her Majesty, says: "PULVERMACHER'S BELTS are very effective in Neuralgia and Rheumatic Affections, and I have prescribed them largely in my practice for other similar maladies, paralysis, &c."

DRIVER KILLED UNDER HIS OWN CART.—Dr. Blaney, the Coroner, held an inquest yesterday morning touching the death of Dhurma Changoo, a Municipal labourer, aged 40 years. On the morning of the 11th inst., the deceased was driving a municipal cart, loaded with garbage, along Arthur Road, when the pole of the cart broke under him, throwing him to the ground while the cart fell on him. He was seriously injured, and taken to the J. J. Hospital, where he died on Thursday night. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the above facts.

BATHING FATALITY.—Last evening two Hindu lads, named Lalu Reloo and Jamsadass Girja, both about ten years of age, went to bathe in Babula Tank, near the J. J. Hospital when they got beyond their depth, and were drowned. A Hindu, who happened to be near the tank at the time, went into the water, and brought the children out. As they were not breathing they were placed in a victoria and taken to the J. J. Hospital but they died on the way. The bodies of the two lads were then taken to the Morgue, where Dr. Blaney, the Coroner, will hold an inquest this morning.

FATAL CARRIAGE ACCIDENT.—An inquest was held yesterday morning, by Dr. Thomas Blaney, the Coroner, at Girgaum, touching the death of an old Hindu woman, named Luxmibai, aged 60 years. On the night of the 8th inst., whilst the deceased was trying to cross the road at the Bhooleshvar Market, she was knocked down and run over by a victoria. Luxmibai, who was not seriously injured, was removed to the J. J. Hospital by the police. Four days ago the deceased felt better and so left the hospital and went to her house. On Thursday morning she was seized with spasms, and died at midnight. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

THEFT BY HOUSEBREAKING.—At the Girgaum Police Court yesterday Inspector Hiscocks charged Rama Mahadu, against whom there appeared a register of three previous convictions, before Mr. Hamilton, Second Presidency Magistrate, with house-breaking and theft of property, valued at Rs. 24, belonging to a Hindu woman, named Kashi. On the morning of the 7th instant, the complainant Kashi missed her husband, and went in search of him, looking the door as she went out. The accused, who lived next door to the complainant, taking advantage of the complainant's absence, broke into her room, and stealing from a cupboard the wearing-apparel mentioned decamped. The complainant on her return discovered the theft and reported the matter to the police, who, on inquiry, arrested the accused on 13th inst., and subsequently recovered the stolen clothes from the shop of a Marwaree, with whom the accused had pledged them. The accused denied the charge, but admitted three previous convictions. His Worship convicted the accused on the evidence before him, and sentenced him to undergo two years' imprisonment, with hard labour.

A MILD PENALTY.—At the Esplanade Police Courts yesterday before the Chief Presidency Magistrate a European, named Shaw, a stevedore employed at Messrs. Hill and Grennan's, appeared in answer to a charge of assault on J. K. Menezes, a receiving clerk in the employ of Bombay Port Trust at the Prince's and Victoria Docks, on the 17th inst. The complainant stated that while some cargo was being discharged from the s. s. Ebro by a crane the chain carrying the weight parted, causing some bags to fall between the steamer and the quay. Menezes immediately picked up two links that had become detached to show them to his employers, when defendant seized him by the back of his neck and snatched the links from him, claiming them as the property of his employers. The circumstance was reported to the Superintendent of Police at the Docks by the Port Trust manager of the shed. The complainant having brought forward other evidence, Mr. Shaw, who denied the charges called the second officer in support of his defence, when the latter deposed to the stevedore laying hold of the complainant by the arm. A nominal fine of one anna was imposed.

A FRIEND'S STRANGE GREETING.—At the Girgaum Police Court yesterday, Mr. De Souza, pleader, appeared before Mr. W. R. Hamilton, Second Presidency Magistrate, and applied, on behalf of Mr. Heerjeebhoy Merwanjee, for

GOLD FRAMED SPECTACLES.

OF all the Metals used for making Spectacle Frames Gold is pre-eminently the best for considerations of mere utility, but no greater mistake could be made than to allow the idea of intrinsic value or portable property to intrude. Pure Gold would be less fit for the purpose than almost any other pure Metal, though when ...riciously alloyed, it has decided advantages, which contribute to give it the highly desirable quality of greater durability, and to secure the even more important result of retaining the Pebbles more reliably in the required position, an accomplished Gold Spectacle Frame maker is 'rara avis' in Europe, and does not exist in India. Next to Gold as the most suitable Metal comes Nickel which, though less intrinsically valuable than Silver, makes a lighter and more serviceable frame, and has the one great advantage over Steel, that it is not liable to oxydize or corrode.

ALTHOUGH the Bank of England rate was reduced by one per cent. yesterday, and that on short London Bills was put down ½ per cent., Council were ½ per cent. lower, at 95; but Indian Sterling Loan was unaltered, at 105¼. Bar Silver advanced 1-16d. per oz., say to 44⅝d.; but Rupee Securities were unaltered at Wednesday's quotations of £75⅞ for Fours, and £77⅜ for 4½ per cents.; and in New York the metal was ½ cent higher at 99 cents, with demand Exchange on London ¼ cent lower, at 4·88 dollars. Some additional allotments of 4½ lakhs of Indian Council Bills, almost all on Bombay, were made on Wednesday, at 1s. 4 31-32d.; and yesterday 3 lakhs on Calcutta were placed at 1s. 5d.; which shows an advance of ⅛d. on Wednesday's regular allotment rate. It is announced that only 40 lakhs will be offered next week. The Exchange Bank's buying rate on India, at 30 days' sight, remained at 1s. 4 11-16d. French Rentes in Paris were ¼ per cent. higher at 95¼ ex-coupon; Exchange on London was a shade lower, at 25·29 cents.

The weekly Returns of the Bank of England issued yesterday made the Reserve unchanged at 46 per cent. of the Liabilities; but the improved state of the Money Market was indicated by the reductions above referred to. The Bank rate now stands at 3 per cent.; and the rates on short London Bills and six months' sight Indian Paper at 1⅞ and 2⅛, respectively.

No further news is to hand regarding General Produce, quotations for which may, therefore, be taken as unchanged, excepting that for Bombay Linseed, to arrive, which was yesterday 6d. per quarter higher, at 42s. 6d. ex-quay.

Cotton in Liverpool closed easier last evening; Surats freely offered; and arrivals dull; the day's sales having aggregated 10,000 bales, inclusive of 500 East Indian. Mid.-Americans remained at Wednesday's reduced rate of 4 9-16d.; but arrivals were 1-32d. down in the nearer positions, and 1-64d. in the more distant; while in Surats "Good" Khandeish was ⅛d., and "Fine" and "Good" Belatee and Good Hingunghat, 1-16d. lower. The day's Imports were 1,000 bales. The Manchester Market was quiet.

In New York, 8 7-16 cents was still the price of ready Mid.-Uplands, and September Futures were a point lower, at 8·29 cents. The Receipts at the U. S. Ports were 2,000 bales; and the figures from the beginning of the season now compare as follows with those of the previous two years:—

Since 1st Sept. '90,	6,799,000	5,735,000	5,479,600

Our local Cotton market has been quiet in tone to-day with only a small business passing, and prices quite unchanged. Exporters have taken 1,000 bales, consisting of 500 Nugger, at Rs. 150; 400 Broach, at Rs. 153-5; and 100 Indore, at Rs. 170; while the mills have only bought 600 bales, made up of 350 Julgaum, at Rs. 149-50; 150 Tinnivelly, at Rs. 155-6; and 100 Nugger, at Rs. 145 per candy.

WHEAT and SEEDS have been taken to a moderate extent only to-day. The tone of the former market has been firm, and the latter steady; but prices are unchanged for all descriptions.

The same tone continued throughout the day, though with only a moderate business doing; and an advance of 1-32d. on the morning's rates was established, the market having closed firm at the following ready quotations :—

ALLAHABAD, JUNE 19.

The trial of Angao Sena was resumed on the 17th.

The fourth witness for the prosecution of Angao Sena, Indra Singh, major in the Manipur service, was in charge of the East Gate on the 24th March by order of the Top-Guard. He saw the Jubraj on the north wall, and saw the accused also early that day. He was going from his house by the East Gate to the Palace. He did not see him again that day. Witness with 200 men went to fight at Thobal. There were eight majors and eight poiheias in the Manipuri army. The poiheia who was subordinate to him went to Thobal seven days after him. Aiya Parel subsequently went with 200 men. After the Manipuris had been driven out of Thobal, the Senapati and accused went out with guns to fight for five or six days. Witness went out to fight on the 25th March. Accused was out fighting for four or five days. The fighting was with a Sahib and some British sepoys, who had come from the east. Some Langthobal men were with them.

In examination by the prisoner's representative, the witness stated that he went out to Thobal by the order of the Jubraj, and the Tongal General prevented his getting the Senapati's orders, which it was usual to receive.

The fifth witness, Angao Ningto, repeated the evidence previously given by him. He stated that he did not see the accused on the 24th March, and that accused went off to Thobal. This was after accused had been down the Cachar Road. Angao Sena was not at the durbar on the night of the 24th March.

The sixth witness, Baboo Bamon Charan Mukerjee, clerk to the Maharaja, stated that at the durbar held at Manipur before the arrival of Mr. Quinton, it was decided to send 1,000 men under the command of the accused, to the Mao Thana to oppose the advance; it being believed that the Chief Commissioner was bringing the ex-Maharaja to reinstate him. Mr. Grimwood discouraged this idea, suggesting that the durbar should wire to Calcutta to ascertain if the ex-Maharaja was with Mr. Quinton, and it was discovered he was not with him. The arrangements for the troops going to Mao were cancelled. The Manipuris desired to oppose the ex-Raja, and not the British troops. On the 23rd March the women, children, and property were removed from the Pat, and a number of troops were waiting about. The accused was present at the durbar on the 23rd March, when the Maharaja consulted his ministers as to giving up the Jubraj. He was well. It was determined at this durbar to petition the Chief Commissioner to let the Jubraj off arrest. Witness further stated that he knew the accused was not to be arrested. The Manipuri troops were ready to turn out and rescue any member of the royal family who might be arrested. They were usually dismissed after receiving the Chief Commissioner; but on this occasion they were kept under arms.

The seventh witness, Usurba, related the circumstances under which he went to the Jubraj on the night of the 24th March after the Tongal General had ordered the massacre of the officers, and how, after the Jubraj had consulted with the Tongal, an order for execution was given and carried out. Accused took some troops and guns to fight at Thobal.

The eighth witness Dhow Singh, the executioner, stated there was an enormous crowd present at the executions, but though it was bright moonlight, he could not recognise anyone present.

Subedar Kalendro Singh will give his evidence on Friday; which will conclude the prosecution of Angao Sena.

The report of the Military Court of Enquiry at Manipur is in the hands of the Commander-in-Chief now, who will shortly pass orders thereon.

A TIGER STORY WITH A MORAL.

A CORRESPONDENT, who subscribes himself "A Traveller" but encloses his card as a guarantee of good faith, sends us the following thrilling "tale of a tiger," to which he appends a moral. We give his story as it reaches us:—

In the small village of Karka, in the Rajapoor taluka, of the District of Ratnagiri, a bullock was one night killed by a tiger, who, however, left a portion of his victim's flesh on the spot. Villagers in Konken commonly believed that in such cases the tiger is sure to visit the scene of his violence the next night and the villagers of Karka accordingly suggested to themselves many contrivances to entrap the tiger. The plan that was ultimately adopted was to mix a large proportion of Harik (a kind of grain which intoxicates the eater) with the flesh that was left on the spot. The belief of the people fell true. The fated tiger did visit the spot the next night and ate his fill of the mixed flesh. He became deeply intoxicated. His limbs refused to carry him and he lay in the dry bed of a rivulet close by. His eyes rolled and he looked vacant. In the morning a bold Mahar discovered his haunt with a loaded gun in his hand. The tiger did not care to notice him in his presence at first, but when he saw his weapon, he mustered up all his strength and darted with vehemence against the unfortunate marksman whose rusty gun refused to go off—but only to catch hold of his weapon. Away he snatched it instantly and in a fit of anger dashed it against the ground several times probably to make it useless. The Mahar was not touched. The gun was left almost where it was found. The tiger resumed his seat in the rivulet. In the meanwhile the adventurous Mahar climbed a tree which happened to be very near and watched the tiger, who in turn watched his adversary from below for a considerable time. But drowsiness overcame him at last and closed his eyes. At this time the Mahar came down still and quiet and reclimbed the tree with his treacherous weapon. The position that he took up was not very high. He pulled the trigger and the gun did go off, but unfortunately the barrel became separated from the stock and the bullet missed. The tiger was roused by the report and ran straight up the tree at the Mahar, who made his best in striking tiger with the stock in his hand. After a while the tiger partly succeeded in the struggle and bit off a lump of flesh from his adversary's fore-arm, but was unable to do him any further injury as the Mahar with a desperate attempt climbed further up so as to be beyond reach of the quadruped. The whole of the village gathered around at a long distance and a small number of almost a good-for-nothing guns obtained with difficulty from the neighbouring villages. But the difficulty was greater in getting any good marksmen. The tiger was already half-dead by the Mahar's beating and some of the random shots from the crowd put an end to his life. The Mahar bled profusely and literally washed the stem of the tree with his blood. He was so weakened by the loss of his blood that he had to be helped down with the utmost caution. He was for some time unconscious, but is now believed to be fairly on his way to recovery.

The story is interesting and also instructive. It is a plea for a more liberal policy of the Arms Act. Very few natives know how to use a gun and fewer to hit a mark. I do not wish to add anything further by way of comment, because I think I have already taken up much of your space.

A RATHER mixed announcement by a music-hall "artiste" appears in the last issue of the Era:—All engagements postponed until further notice, owing to serious accident whilst riding at Aldershot the horse running away, then throwing her off, and sustaining severe injuries. Lying in the female in ward, Military Hospital, Aldershot. Should not the poor horse have been sent to the Hospital for Animals?

FRAU ALEXANDRA CSERNA, the daughter of an aristocratic family in Pesth, who ran away with a poor lover to Racz Keve, on the Danube, has just committed suicide in a sensational manner, taking with her her four children. Her husband, who turned out to be a drunkard, had left her and her four children unprovided for a month ago, even robbing her of the little money which she had earned by hard labour. The delicate constitution of the wife was unable to stand the strain put upon her, especially as the husband had been in the habit of beating her and her children when money was not forthcoming. On Friday recently Mme. Cserna was seen on the bank of the Danube with her children. She was seen to fold her eldest child, five years old, to her breast, while she placed the baby in a hood hanging from her shoulders. Then, taking the two others by the hand, she rushed into the water before the eyes of a number of people, who were helpless witnesses. The bodies must have gone right to the bottom of the river, and got entangled in the weeds and moss for none of them rose to the surface.

VANITY FAIR.

(FROM OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, MAY 29.

If the intelligent foreigner had been on the prowl in Piccadilly on Wednesday morning, his mind would have been severely exercised as to the reason for the unusual stir and excitement. Why at this early hour are the men resplendent in over-coats of exquisite newness and "button-holes" fresh from the hothouse; why are the women dazzling in rose-crowned bonnets, Medicis capes, and parasols of chiffon, described in the argot of the milliner as "flots de mer"? If the intelligent foreigner is our neighbour Jacques Bonhomme from over the way, he quickly divines the cause—he has seen similar demonstrations in Paris on the occasion of the "Grand Prix." But if the stranger comes from beyond thee seas, from th islands of the Pacific or Aust ralasia, he is puzzled indeed to know what fascination draws every one away from brilliant bewildering London, with its delightful shops, luxurious restaurants, and distracting pleasures. Why are the Houses of Parliament empty, the courts deserted? Why does the lawyer shut his books, the tradesman his shop? Why does the mechanic lay down his tools, the shoemaker his last? Why? To take part in our great national Bacchanalia on Epsom Downs; to see "the Derby."

***

How gay they all looked, setting out in the morning sunshine, with the roses, artificial and natural, on their cheeks and in their hair—how different a few hours later, with their flowers drooping, their capes crushed, and their billowy sunshades wrecked by the drenching hail showers. Ah! the game is hardly worth the candle if the race for the Derby stakes is run in the rain. Sunshine is the essential element of the success of our al fresco festivals; otherwise the pleasure-seeker returns, like Ibsen's fallen hero, dejected with roses, but with vine-leaves wreathed in his hair.

***

Was it as a protest against the frivolity of man that the Liberal women fixed the Derby Day for their great annual council? It looked very like it. The advanced woman is so intensely earnest, so uncomfortably conscientious, that she is always on the look-out, like the desert saints, for some way of chastising the flesh and showing her superiority to ordinary male humanity. But in this matter of sitting in council at Prince's Hall, while all the world was on its way to Epsom, advanced womankind ran the risk of showing its superiority at the expense of its common sense. She ought to have again gone to the desert saints for example. We are told that these worthies had different degrees of discipline—they took their torture gradually. They did not begin using the lash with the prickly knobs until their delicate skin was hardened by the application of a gentle little tickler made of twine or horsehair; nor did they flop at once into a nettley bed, before trying its efficacy, applied in sections.

***

It was risky of the Women's Liberal Federation to indulge all at once in such severe discipline. The love of mortification is a plant of slow growth in some women, however advanced their aspirations; and there are those amongst the Federation who have once enjoyed races, al fresco lunches, and champagne-cup, and who are hardly chastened enough to relinquish such delights in perpetuity. However, in spite of all temptations, the council mustered five hundred strong, and sat debating dry-as-dust details in Prince's Hall, while at Epsom the summer sun shone, and the wind blew, and the clouds gathered, and the rain fell, and Common won the race for the Derby. What a contrast between the two pictures! There, upwards of a hundred thousand men who pride themselves on their brain-power, their intellectual superiority, their business capacity, their fitness to exercise all the prerogatives of the franchise, straining their eyes to see a horse ridden almost to death; and here, five hundred of the despised womankind, whose united brain is not counted worth one single vote, devoting themselves heart and soul to the reconstitution and reforming of humanity. On the platform the distinguished members of the council forming the executive were gathered under the presidency of the Countess of Aberdeen, who made an ideal chairwoman during the two days session. It was rather hard work, keeping order amongst women who had plenty to say and very little time to say it, and only of the most consummate tact could have effected it satisfactorily to all parties. Lady Aberdeen had need of all her diplomatic sense when the women's suffrage question came to the front.

***

On this point there is divergence of opinion among the sixty thousand women who belong to the Liberal Federation. Liberality of sentiment as expressed in the word libre "free" is recognized in mostly everything; but this buening question, women first and Liberals after, is the cry of the one section, Liberals first and women after, the cry of the other, which is the stronger, mentally as well as numerically. The progressive party as they call themselves in distinction to their opponents, whom they designate the retrogressives, were in the majority over the union of the federation during the preceding twelve months; and complimentary things were said even of the Primrose dames in regard to their superior appreciation of the rights of women. On the subject of the liquor traffic there was a tendency among the temperance party to be very rabid and almost abusive. In language at least it cannot be said that the total abstainers are temperate. Possibly their over-indulgence in strong words allows them to retrench in the matter of strong liquors. But it is rather rough on the feelings of thoroughly temperate women to be told they are in league with the publitans and dragging their country to destruction and to the other great big D, because they refuse to make an effort to saddle the Constitution of Great Britain with a law to prevent infants fetching beer for hardworked mothers. It is very sad that such a necessity should exist—it would be much nicer for nursing women if these temperance ladies would form themselves into a philanthropic association for the automatic supply of beer to the labouring classes; or if temperance reformers would themselves do the thirst-provoking work and so remove the necessity for drink from the masses. But no—they will do nothing of the kind—they will not even try the plan of paying the potboy to deliver the beer. They would prefer to pay him to dilute it with water so that the working woman's soul might revolt from the noxious beverage. Well—we all have our hobby, and it appears that whether he is a Derby winner or not, we enjoy seeing him ridden almost to death.

***

During the session of the Women's Liberal Council, the delegates were hospitably entertained by the principal leaders of liberal Society in London. At Lady Hayter's soiree there was a very pleasant crowd, and Lady Davey, the wife of Sir Horace Davey, Q.C., entertained a large party at lunch, at 86, Brook Street. Miss Cons, Miss Cobden, and Mrs. Eva McLaren provided intellectual treats—visits to the Houses of Parliament, St. Paul's, the museums, for country delegates who have not often the advantage of visiting London.

***

From the doings of ladies in London to those in Cincinnatti is a very short flight notwithstanding the distance. It is not in matters intellectual, but domestic, or rather urban that Cincinnatti women have lately distinguished themselves, and there are openings at home for imitation of their tactics. Cincinnati city was very dirty and the board of aldermen very inert, so that the ladies' pretty dresses suffered. Appeal after appeal had been vainly made to the authorities. It was only by getting up early and tackling to the work themselves—shouldering spades and trundling barrows that that board of aldermen was brought to a sense of its duty by its womankind. The streets are now kept clean! But the U. S. A. does not always lend us such valuable examples. The British matron and her spouse would very much resent the application of Boston law, if after being separated for a few days they were arrested for indulging publicly in achaste salute. Yet this occurred the other day to a recently-wedded pair, who were parted temporarily and happened to kiss on meeting in the streets. So much for the ultra civilization of the Hub, and so much for the boasted freedom of the Stars and Stripes.

***

A romantic tale comes from Ireland apropos of the Father Matthew Centenary Statue, for which the commission was confided to the clever young sculptor Miss Mary Redmond. A handsome young model who stood for the figure of the great temperance reformer in the Franciscan habit, smashed the completed clay model to atoms, and threatened the life of the young sculptor. The damage is estimated at £250, which besides the disappointment at the time and trouble gone for nothing, will fall heavily on the young girl who has worked her way up to distinction step by step, steadily and perseveringly since as a little child she modelled cunning little mud pies in her poor native village. Whether the act was done in jealousy or was the old complaint, poetically described in Ibsenese as wreathing vine leaves in his hair, will probably be disclosed before the magistrate, who in either case will show small sympathy to the transgressor.

***

One of the latest associations on record is the Physical Regeneration Society, which proposes to cure, eradicate, and prevent disease by certain ascetic ways of living that would have charm only in the eyes of a desert saint, a temperance reformer, or possibly a strong-minded liberal woman. It is unnecessary to enter into the menu more minutely than to say that even water unless boiled is not permitted, and every other even tolerably drinkable temperance beverage is prohibited on the score of health. The preliminary announcement will suffice to show that mental health does not seem as essential as bodily health to the promoters.

CASUAL LETTERS FROM ARAMPUR.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ARAMPUR, JUNE 13.

THE durbar, taking it all in all, was undoubtedly a great success. The chief fault that I had to find with it was its unconscionable length; and I suffered more on this score than most of my colleagues through the partiality which Mr. Abel displayed for me, and the unquenchable thirst that possessed him to obtain information on every point of the novel and barbarous ceremony. "It will make," he said, "such an excellent chapter in my great forthcoming work, 'India for the People, or the True State of the Country Popularly Described.' That will be the book of the year, Mr. Brown, I assure you! Illustrated profusely and full of the most interesting information up to date. I've got about a thousand pages ready for the press already." I knew all about that. I had met a man who had recently come out with Abel and his artist. The ship hadn't well left the docks before the bookmaker of the future was at work on all the Anglo-Indians on board collecting materials; while the artist sat by trying his hand at fancy sketches. Before the energetic pair succumbed to sea sickness, that is to say, within four or five hours, they had written and illustrated two or three of the opening chapters of this veracious and trustworthy account of modern India for modern England. In fact, my friend told me that the first sheets were sent ashore with the pilot, and that Abel boasted with a not unnatural pride of his smartness. As his actual experience enlarged and enabled him to compare some of the sensational matter he had at first transmitted to his publishers with results obtained from more deliberate observation and less embroidered narrative, he became dissatisfied with these opening chapters, and before he had left Aden had wired in hot haste to the enterprising firm that had commissioned him not to set up that part of the work. He added bitterly that he would substitute for it a long chapter on the diseased imagination of the Anglo-Indian official; and his sinful indifference to the sacred obligations of Truth. He was a curious mixture, this radical leader of opinion; a mixture of blatant dogmatism, with childish credulity. He worshipped Gladstone with the melancholy servility of his party, and while nobly sceptical of the probity of all Anglo-Indian officials, believed profoundly in the Babu. He expatiated eloquently on his favourite text, "The equality of all men"; but even here he felt obliged to except the Anglo-India official. Such a being appeared to him so morally degraded as to shake his hitherto implicit belief in the universal law of evolution. He was an interesting creature of his class; his callous impertinence was a revelation to the refined spirits of Arampur. I was naturally anxious to do what I could to help in preparing this great chapter on the Arampur Durbar; but I could not help regretting that his voice was so resonant. His remarks, too, were wholly unconventional and out of keeping with the solemn spirit of the occasion. As the Hon'ble Vasquez announced the style and title of each of the illustrious members of the durbar, his irrepressible curiosity became embarrassing. For instance Vasquez would lift up his sonorous voice and, say "Your Excellency a robe of honour for the Chor of Thaggipur." And as that distinguished potentate yawed up the tent under the strenuous guidance of poor Callow; tacking from side to side, while Callow perspired freely and pathetically in his endeavours to steer a straight and dignified course, and the assembly was hushed in an awful, sympathetic silence, Abel would make that painful voice of his distinctly audible in such questions as "The Chor did he say? Mr. Brown, what is a Chor? Anything like a Duke? Poor old chap he looks very groggy, does he drink?" That was the thing Abel always wanted to know. I told my ardent friend that the Chor was most respectable; came of a long line not uncommon in these parts; some of them had migrated to the Andamans, a beautiful settlement that we maintained specially for these fine old roving races. That considering the ripe age which the Chor had reached I inferred that he did drink sometimes.

It explained laboriously to Abel that living as we did so far away from civilization and out of touch with the discoveries of modern science, we had hitherto failed to discover a way of protracting life in Arampur without drinking. "Spirits I mean," said Abel heatedly. "Ah I don't!" I replied decisively. I wanted to check the conversation before I got into trouble with the Chief, who was already eyeing me and my companion with grave disapproval. "Bless me," croked out Abel in a second or two, "how that youngster does drink the Chor about! Brutal I call it to treat an old man and a distinguished old man so roughly. No one but an Anglo-Indian official," he went on with concentrated wrath and scorn, "would think of behaving like that to a gentleman old enough to be his father. If I were a Chor I'd see the whole administration further before I'd let any young whippersnapper handle me like that." The fact was that the Chor with his robe of honour was making very bad weather on his way back; and it took poor Callow all his time to avoid collisions. "If you were a Chor," I replied pleasantly playing upon words, "you might be handled even more roughly by my friend Dare yonder and his myrmidons." "I don't understand you, Sir," replied Abel with offended dignity. "No," I said sadly, "I hardly thought you would. Even my dearest friends fail to understand me always; globe-trotters rarely if ever catch my hidden meanings." In the meantime the ceremonies of the durbar went forward, while most of the illustrious Chiefs, Nabobs, patels, &c., who were not actually being convoyed hither and thither by Callow, were dozing serenely on their chairs. "Marvellously impassive race," soliloquized Abel, "wonder if it's drink or opium." I told him with some asperity that it was nothing of the kind; but that this admirable air of repose was principally due to the total absence of political agitation. The soporific effect of an atmosphere charged with the concentrated conservatism of four thousand years could be seen and studied here with great profit. Not one of those dear old drowsy things had ever heard of Gladstone; and were not in the least disturbed on that account. Abel nearly fainted. "Never heard of Gladstone," he gasped. "Never—never heard—of—Gladstone," tremendous! "Why Mr. Brown what have they heard of? "Ah there again you fairly puzzle me! I had to pass an examination before I was permitted to adorn this department and wear this uniform, but no one ever thought of putting such an impossible question as that."

To my intense relief the durbar here came to an end. We formed procession, and marched out with the same air of sad majesty with which we had marched in. "Just like a dream," said Badli as his Excellency's carriage drove off, and we began to look about for our Chiefs; "just like a dream and if I weren't so hungry I should doubt whether I was really awake. Something more than a dream to the poor old Swat though. Two short hours ago, an innocent child of nature, unadorned and now, now a C. A. G. P.! It's awful to think of the sudden mutations of life." "Don't be so downhearted, old man," said Dare cheerily, "it's just breakfast time and you're still undecorated. No one wants to give any of us any Orders, don't you know. Cheer up." Badli said he was by no means confident; he had observed his Excellency casting admiring eyes in his direction; the private secretary had hinted to him that the amazing pertinacity with which Pukka sat in the court of courts was contrary to all statistics and was confounding the whole science of induction; more than one member of the staff had observed that surveying really was not and ought not to be it's own reward. Here Badli shook his head and looked profoundly mysterious. We all clamoured to know what he inferred from these signs and tokens. To our dull minds their meaning was obscure. "I fear," said Badli in a stifled voice, "I greatly fear that there may be some ides abroad of compensating me for Pukka's indecent longevity with—with—"Yes, with what?" we all shrieked. The tension of our nerves was extreme. "With a C. I. E." Callow sank sobbing on a chair; this was the only sound for a moment that broke the stillness. Then Teaque, "Shut up soft head," "Come and have a peg, Badli," but Badli, as all the world knows, does not drink, at least anything as strong as pegs; besides he had already caught sight of the Swat, and was towing him dreamily through the crowd towards his ekka. Marmalade seized on Teaque before that young man could find any whiskey, and in a few seconds the gallant Marmalade and his men were letting off the midday gun with as much enthusiasm as ever. A positively sinful waste of public time and money, Abel said it was; but his eloquent expostulations had not the slightest effect on Marmalade. That son of Mars, said he, knew the Queen's regulations by heart; that he had got his orders to fire that gun and meant to go on doing so till it burst, which he thought would happen in a few minutes. "Bless me," said Abel, hastily retreating towards his tent, "these people are little better than lunatics! Not the slightest idea of reason; not the slightest regard for their own or anyone else's life." I made my Chief over to a friend, as I was completely exhausted, and was just mounting one of Pukka's camels when I was presented with a circular from the Chief. Herein we were all and several informed that at 10-30 there would be an official meeting of all heads of departments in full dress uniform; and of every other gentleman moving in Arampur society who cared to come and possessed any article of fancy dress in which to attend. That the object of the meeting had not yet been clearly defined; but that Vasquez and Callow were ciphering the thing out, and that by the time we were all assembled the Chief pledged himself that some business should be laid before us. I groaned inwardly; I had intended visiting Figs at his guest camp; I had intended to enjoy a hearty meal at the expense of the Swat, the terms of whose new Order bound him to cherish and supply me; and thereafter I had fondly hoped that Abel would talk me into a sweet and profound sleep. It certainly is a dreadful thing to be a public servant on occasions of this sort; and in spite of Abel I was convinced that few of her Majesty's liege subjects were more honestly earning their pay than I and my brethren of the Arampur corps diplomatique at this trying time.

BEER AND HOW TO DRINK IT.

GAMBRINUS is the patron of beer, and here in Germany this monarch is served with greater devotion and has probably a far larger number of adherents than any other of the numerous German princes. He is by no means a rigid disciplinarian, and does not require from his followers any particular form of worship. The cult can be carried on in black or in white; by means of Bavarian, Pilsener, Erlanger, Lager, Karlsruher, or Berliner Bock, or in a hundred different forms of varying colour and strength. Nor must it either be supposed that the Pilsener or Lager Beer, which is now so much drunk in India, can in any way compare with the "Edle Nass" (or noble wet) which one drinks in Germany. There is perhaps no such delicious refreshment as the first long draught of German beer after one's return from a lengthened exile in India. English draught beer is no doubt very nice, but it wants the brisk and champagne-like freshness of German beer. Besides in summer-time English draught ale is always more or less warm, since the casks are not, as they are here, kept in cool cellars and packed in ice. Another drawback to English ale is that it is strong, and you cannot drink so much of it as you can of German beer. The highest type of English ale may be taken to be Trinity audit, but of this a single wine-glass is sufficient to make one feel almost intoxicated In Germany what is aimed at is not strength but flavour, and in this they are certainly successful. The object to be attained is the greatest possible amount of consumption, with the least amount of intoxication. The result is that although the average consumption per man is probably greater in Germany than it is in England there is very little drunkenness to be seen. Moreover, the drinking is carried on far more sociably and pleasantly than in England. There are no crowded evil-smelling public houses, where the beer is consumed hurriedly by men standing at a sloppy bar, but each man has his seat and his table with his earthen-ware or glass-pot before him, and in that chair he remains for some two hours at least, until he has finished his regulation number of schoppen. How many such schoppen (about an Imperial pint) can a man drink without any evil consequences? The answer to this question depends a great deal upon habit of body and custom, but I have known many a man who has gone home perfectly sober after having stowed away beneath his belt at least a dozen at a sitting, and I remember on one occasion some twelve years ago when I formed one of a party of eight, who met solely to finish a new unbroached cask of Pilsener beer, expressly imported for the occasion. By three o'clock in the morning we had performed our task, and were all out on the parade ground next morning at eight, and were none the worse for our symposium. But in the drinking of German beer there are certain rules, which, if duly regarded, the follower of King Gambrinus is less likely to suffer than one less careful. The other day I read in a German newspaper some valuable hints on this subject, which is one of national concern, and a few of them may not be devoid of interest to your readers.

The very first requisite of a good glass of beer is that it should be full of carbonic acid gas. It is ignorance of this rule that makes draught beer in India so difficult to keep, especially on the plains. Only once has the writer come across a person clever enough to grasp this truth, and he arranged a most ingenious contrivance by which he fastened the end of an India-rubber tube to the bung hole of a cask, and then connected the other end with a soda-water machine, so that for every glass of beer drawn off, the vacuum in the cask was filled with carbonic acid gas. In this way the beer was kept fresh the whole time it was on tap, and the last glass was as clear and carried as good a head of foam as the first. Even in Germany this important fact is generally lost sight of, and out of a hundred barmen, ninety-nine hold the glass far under the tap, so as to give the glass as strong a head of foam as possible. The consequence is that a large quantity of the carbonic acid gas, which gives to the beer its refreshing taste and its digestive qualities, is allowed to escape, and in its place is substituted the close air of the room, of the properties of which the least said the better. The beer should be allowed to flow slowly against the inner side of the glass, so as to admit of as little air as possible. The admission of air can easily be remarked by a discoloration in the upper part of the liquid. This discoloration is caused by the admixture of air which can be seen in the little air bubbles. If these disappear quickly, with an up and and down movement, it is a sure sign of the good quality of the drink; but if they remain quiet and only rise slowly to the surface it is a proof that the glass comes from the bottom of the cask and is not fit to be poured into the human stomach. The carbonic acid gas remains longest in cold beer, and for this reason if the cask has not been kept in ice the guest should insist upon each first glass being washed out with cold water before it is again filled. To put ice into a beer on the other hand is to kill it and to deprive it of all briskness. Ice should be removed over the ice into the tumblers, in which case it loses all the inherent gas, or else the ice is put into the beer, and in melting gives to the liquid all the air contained in the ice itself. No German beer-drinker would ever dream of putting ice into his favorite drink. Light also spoils beer, and the glass should therefore never be allowed to stand in the sun; whilst as soon as a draught has been taken, the lid with which each German mug is furnished should be shut down so as to exclude both light and air. Of such importance is this point that amongst friends if one of them after drinking heedlessly leaves his lid open he is at once liable to a fine of a mug of freshly-drawn beer all round. It is for this reason that earthen-ware mugs are preferable to glass, for they do not admit the light, but on the other hand the transparency of a glass allows the drinker to see what the quality of the beer is. Simanowsky has made several important experiments under this head which go to show that indigestions and catarrh of the stomach is almost invariably caused by drinking beer dulled by sediment, the effect being very insidious and slow, showing itself sometimes weeks afterwards.

A most important question for the beer-drinker is, "How much may I drink?" Not only do opinions differ on this point, but it is difficult for any one individual to lay down a hard and fast rule. At different times and under different circumstances each individual is liable to be differently liable to the intoxicating influence of beer. The same quantity of beer does not always effect the same person in the same way. Dr. Gothelf, in his "Hints on Medicine," says: "If before going to any inn for my usual drink I have had a pleasant conversation with friends, and at the same time a nice walk, I can stand several glasses of beer more; if on the other hand I have been excited or angry, or my nerves irritated by sorrow, trouble, or misfortune, one or two glasses of beer are sufficient to bring about a serious state of things." A good long bout of drinking—if you should be such a sinner as to indulge in one—should be frequently interrupted by eating, for this is the only way the digestive powers of the stomach can be maintained. By continually pouring liquid into the stomach the nerves are excited without receiving the nourishment which they are in want of. They are brought into direct contact with the alcohol, become over-excited, then deadened, and the consequences of usage of this kind are indigestions and troubles of the most disagreeable nature. Therefore you should never drink without eating. If you have had a good meal before drinking it is sufficient if from time to time during the bout you supply the stomach with a little cheese, a poached egg, a salt roll, or a radish. The latter has one inestimable advantage, that it excites fresh thirst. The man who whilst drinking nurses his stomach in this way will not have next morning to complain of evil consequences, vulgarly known as "hot coppers." It is this feeling of "katzenjammer" (cat-woe) which makes us instinctively call next morning for food calculated to excite the wearied nerves of the stomach, such as a sour cucumber,

Those Recommendations, though they have in more than one respect fallen short of their reasonable and legitimate aspirations, were substantially adopted by your Lordship in Council after mature consideration, and have been regarded by the natives of India as betokening to some extent the sincere desire of Her Majesty's Government to abide by its avowed policy of employing the natives of India, as far as they ought to be employed, in the higher offices of the country. It is only by faithfully giving effect to those recommendations, such as they are, as adopted by your Lordship in Council, that Her Majesty's Government can prove that it is ready to perform what it has promised. The Council, therefore, most humbly beg of your Lordship to impress upon the Government of Bombay the necessity and importance of paying careful regard to and abiding by the recommendations of the Public Service Commission, so far as they have been adopted by your Lordship in Council, in making appointments to posts reserved for the Uncovenanted or Provincial Service.—&c.

THE LATE RAO SAHEB RUPRAM.

A CORRESPONDENT writes:—A meeting of the people of Ahmedabad was held, as proposed on Saturday last at the Hemabhai Institute, to offer a deserved tribute to the memory of Rao Saheb Mahipatram Rupram. Most of the gentlemen who interest themselves in literary, social, religious, or political matters were present before the appointed hour and by the time of the commencement of the proceedings the hall was crowded. "All was sad and silent as the gravity of the occasion required. The proceedings commenced by Rao Bahadur Ranchodlal Chotalal, C.I.E., proposing that Mr. McCorkell should take the chair. On the proposal being seconded by K. B. P. H. Dastur the worthy gentleman acknowledged in modest terms the honour done to him in asking him to take the chair on such a serious occasion. He said a very sad event had occasioned the meeting. Though he had been in Ahmedabad only for a very short time he had heard much about the merits and services of the late Mr. Mahipatram. The chairman then called upon the gentlemen who had propositions to move to proceed.

Mr. Giles after describing succinctly in a pathetic manner the parentage and early life of the Rao Saheb, the pains he took in educating himself, his early application to institutions aiming at public good in Bombay, his high worth being soon recognized by Mr. Hope, who took him up to aid him in his endeavours to promote education in Gujerat, his voyage to England to prepare himself for the duties of the head of the Training College and the great courage and sacrifice which were involved in the act, the more than a dozen institutions in Gujerat with which he usefully connected himself, the completeness and efficiency with which he did his official work notwithstanding these various occupations, the unprecedented length of thirty-six years of his public career and the great loss to the Education Department which his death involved moved the following proposition:—"The meeting expresses its deep regret at the sudden death of Rao Saheb Mahipatram Rupram, C.I.E., in whom Gujerat, and particularly Ahmedabad, have lost an earnest and indefatigable worker in matters connected with education, social reforms, and public good."

Rao Bahadur Ranchodlal Chotalal, C.I.E., briefly explained in Gujerati the substance of the eloquent address of Mr. Giles, and added remarks of his own, showing how the Rao had been a most active and thoroughly honest and unselfish manner laying stress upon his working for Mahomedan education and seconded the proposition.

Mr. Gulamali supported the proposition in an appropriate Hindustani speech acknowledging on behalf of the Mahomedan community the obligations they were laid under by the Rao Saheb's services to them.

The president having put the proposition before the meeting it was passed nem. con. While these proceedings were going on a telegram was received from Kutch to the effect that the Rao Saheb of that State offered Rs. 600 towards the raising of a fitting memorial of Mr. Mahipatram.

Mr. K. B. Divatia then read the draft of a short Gujerati letter addressed to the Rao Saheb's sons, and proposed its adoption.

Mr. Kathavate, in seconding the proposition, mentioned how the Rao Saheb spared no pains in educating the people of Ahmedabad in matters political and how he commanded the entire confidence of the public by his fearless and disinterested advocacy of measures of public usefulness. He also stated how Rao Saheb Mahipatram impressed good things on the people both by words and example and how he invariably proved a friend and guide to all outsiders.

Mr. Khushalrai then moved the following proposition:—

"A committee, consisting of the following gentlemen, with power to add to their number be formed to take steps to commemorate the name of the late R. S. Mahipatram Rupram, C. I. E:—Mr. E. Giles president, D. B. Manibhai Jasbhai, Mr. Sorabjee Shapurji Bengali, R. B. Ranchodlal Chotalal, R. B. Motilal Lalbhai, Mr. Luxmidas Khemji, R. B. Haridas Viharidas, Mr. Gokuldas Kahandas, Mr. Nandshankar Tuljashankar, Mr. Manibhai Premabhai, Mr. Sarabhai Maganbhai, Mr. Mansukhbhai Bhagubhai, K. B. Nowrojee Pestonjee Vakil, K.S. Bavamia, R. S. Hargovandas Dwarkadas, Mr. Krishnarao Bholanath, Kavi Dalpatram Dayabhai, and Mr. Manekal Asharam; and that the funds collected or received by the committee should be utilized in the best way possible for the use of the blind, lame, supportless, sick, and quite unable to work, &c.

This was seconded by R. S. Keshavlal with a slight modification that Khushalrai's name be added to the committee and that he and Mr. Manekal be made honorary secretaries.

These proceedings terminated by Rao Bahadur Ranchodlal Chotalal and Khan Bahadur P. H. Dastur proposing thanks to the chairman, and the chairman thanking the meeting for having nominated him to the chair on such an important occasion.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

IT has been notified that H. E. Lady Harris, who is expected to arrive in Poona from Panchgani on or about the 23rd instant, will hold a Reception at Government House, Ganeshkhind, on the following Thursday.

THE weather in Calcutta is said to be frightfully hot, and men and horses are falling from the heat we are experiencing. There is something like a mild ice famine too. Few ticca gharries venture out, and the weather is interfering with business.

THE death-rate in Madras for the week ending the 12th instant was no less than 18·7 per mile per annum above the average.

THE necessary machinery for the manufacture of ammunition for the magazine rifle is now on its way out. Some of the existing machinery for Martini cartridges in the Dum-Dum and Kirkee factories will also be converted. When this is done the outturn will be 120,000 rounds per day.

SOME forty thousand Martini-Henry rifles, Mark 4, have now reached India, and are being distributed among the native troops. It has been determined to order some twenty thousand more, to arrive during the current financial year. Only a few thousand of these will be Mark 4, which is the expensive pattern.

TRADE in the Straits Settlements appears to have been considerably below the average last year. There is a decrease as compared with 1889 of nearly 1,300 in the number of vessels which entered the port of Singapore during the twelve months, and this falling off is only partially counterbalanced by an improvement at Malacca and Penang. The number of Chinese coolie immigrants has fallen, moreover, from 140,000 to 129,000. Of these about 18,000 landed under contract, while 12,000 passed through Singapore en route to the Dutch East Indies and British North Borneo.

THE final report on the wheat crop of the past season has just been issued by the Revenue and Agricultural Department. The yield for the whole of India was close on 689,000 tons in excess of that of the previous year, which it ought to be remembered was an unfavourable one. Regarding the causes of the recent high prices Sir Edward Buck is at one with the memorandum by Mr. O'Conor and it is interesting to learn that in the chief centres of trade prices have fallen considerably during May.

A SINGULAR theft has just been perpetrated on the barge of the Governor of Ceylon, all the fine brass stanchions of which were found two days ago to have been stolen from the boat-house at the Customs, where the barge is kept. Directly the theft was discovered, the police arrested two men who were each sentenced to two months' imprisonment.

TYPHOID is increasing at Murree among the troops and, though the preventive measures which are being taken will no doubt do a great deal for the health of the depot, the vicinity of Pindi and the fact that all the weakly and unhealthy men are sent up to Murree, must continue to cause anxiety. At Rawalpindi the doctors and the nursing sisters are having a hard time of it in the hospitals. The Hongkong papers notice the arrival and public appearance there of Mrs. Potter and Mr. Kyrle Bellew. At one of their productions of "Romeo and Juliet" a slight contretemps occurred in the final scene. After the dying Juliet had fallen across Romeo's body the curtain descended amid a storm of applause. A portion of the drapery however, did not quite reach the stage, and, the order to remedy this being misunderstood, the curtain was raised, disclosing the dead Juliet on her feet again, which spoilt to some extent the impression made by the powerfully acted scene that had just closed.

THE Municipal Commissioners at Cawnpore, writes a contemporary, seem to have a way of playing off now the projected waterworks against present improvements in the ordinary sanitation of the city, and now the sanitary improvements against the water-works. Thus the scheme of Mr. Hughes was recently set aside by the Board on the ground that they would first like to try what effect the repair of drains and the cleaning of wells would have. On the other hand in the report on municipal expenditure for the past year it is stated that "there are still a great number of drains which ought to be constructed in the city; but owing to the prospect of scheme for waterworks being introduced, very few drains have been made." If matters are left to the Municipality, it looks as if the Manchester of the North-West would have much of the prospect and little of the reality of reform.

THE first steam launch of the Madras Harbour Board will be floated in a few days by Mr. Lee Pogson who, we are informed, has obtained Lady Wenlock's permission to name it after Her Excellency.

IT is stated that over 5,000 gentlemen left their cards upon the Czarewitch, after he had been attacked, and over 10,000 telegrams of condolence were sent to him from different parts of Japan. Some 800 letters also were forwarded to the Prince by a Special Commitee at Kioko.

THE steamer "Nizam" arrived on the 10th instant at Colombo from Bombay and Tuticorin and reported the death, at sea, of Captain H. R. Burleigh, which sad event occurred at 8-55 a.m., on the 4th instant, shortly after the ship left Bombay. The cause of death was fever and diarrhœa, from which Captain Burleigh had been suffering for some little time. The funeral of the deceased Captain was carried out at sea on the succeeding day. The news of Captain Burleigh's death, writes the Ceylon paper, will be received by many in Colombo with regret, for he was one of the best known commanders of vessels calling here, having spent a great portion of his life in eastern waters.

THE Englishman announces with the deepest regret the death from cholera of Mr. Mostyn Owen, the Superintendent of the Dacca Jail. As is well known, the deceased was engaged to be married to the daughter of the Hon'ble Mr. F. M. Halliday on the 23rd instant, and was to arrive in Calcutta on Friday.

NEWS of another strike comes from Srirangam. Now it is the dancing girls. The managers of the temple appear to have denied them certain privileges under which they were having large emoluments and supplies from the temple, as illegal. The dancing girls have been long agpealing to the managers to restore the privileges to them, but finding their appeals little heeded they refused to perform their duties in the temple. Some of the services which they ought to do in the temple are being done by Brahmins.

A LITTLE incident at the mairie of the 2nd Arrondissement, Paris, put an abrupt end to the festal pomp of a wedding party. The shrinking bride was about to ascend the steps leading to the registry-office when the bride-groom inadvertently trod upon her dress. "Clumsy idiot!" exclaimed the young lady in anger. "Oh!" muttered the offender, recoiling, "If it's like this before the marriage, what will it be like afterwards?" and he took incontinently to flight, and has not been found since.

A REMARKABLE fatality appears to attend every effort of the French to administer or develop their possessions in Eastern Asia. A few weeks ago the first section of a railway line was opened by M. Biere, the Resident Superior at Kep. The ceremony, as reported by the local French press, was made the occasion of an enthusiastic demonstration, but it is mentioned incidentally that the new line was flooded to within a hundred yards of the station.

IF the story of the late Admiral Smythe, which is now being hotly discussed, is true, one of the most pathetic passages in Southey's "Life of Nelson" must be regarded as purely fictitious. Admiral Smythe was told by Hardy that, after being struck by the fatal bullet, Nelson never uttered a word. The whole dialogue between Nelson and Hardy was invented, according to this account, by Lady Hamilton. Nelson never said, "Thank God, I have done my duty." He never said, "Kiss me, Hardy." He never said, "I leave Lady Hamilton and my daughter Horatia a legacy to my country." The last words of Nelson are at least as credible as the speeches put by Thucydides into the mouth of Pericles, or as the famous "Up-guards and at'em," which was not what Wellington said at Waterloo.

THE Committee of the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce has returned to the charge, and in a long letter rebuts Governor Des Vœux's assertion that taxes on shipping do not cover expenses connected with shipping; and stoutly combats the proposal to increase tonnage dues.

WHATEVER the measures adopted, the principle of isolation is the essence of all genuine disinfection. Its efficiency for this purpose was recently well shown at Epsom Common. One of the children in a gipsy encampment having been taken ill with scarlet fever was, along with its mother, very successfully separated from the rest of the community by the simple expedient of a ring fence made of rope drawn round the infected tent and regularly watched. The result has been that the slow progress of convalescence has been passed through and disinfection completed without further extension of the disease. The surveyor, Mr. Harding, is to be congratulated on the success of his novel and effectual manœuvre. The satisfactory result thus easily attained is of obvious importance in connection with the approaching Derby day, with its attendant crowd of "all sorts and conditions of men" flocking to Epsom, and the simple method employed deserves to be remembered in case of later emergencies of a similar kind.

A CORRESPONDENT, writing from Corfu, under date of the 22nd ult., contradicts some of the statements which have been made in telegrams from that city, and adds: "With a little more energy and severity on the part of the local authorities at the beginning, order would not have been disturbed by a few miscreants. At Zante the authorities fell into the other extreme by shooting down eleven Christians in defending the Jews. Here a few of them were ill-treated, and the authorities, in order to protect them, drew a military cordon round the Jewish quarter till the arrival of reinforcements. The houses in the Jewish quarter, with few exceptions, are the property of Christians, a number of whom live there, keeping shops, stocks of merchandize, and having even their churches there, so that the interest of the Christians themselves was not to burn down the property. We have to deplore two victims murdered by the hands of an assassin, an ex-convict, one dying on the spot, the second a few days afterwards. He was interred the day before yesterday, followed to his last abode by a large number of his co-religionists, without any one molesting them in the least as the funeral passed through the different streets. That the Jews suffered cruelly, simply from an exaggerated fear, there cannot be two opinions, but now, I hope, all is over, and order and tranquillity restored."

THE voting for the medal of honour to be awarded to one painting at the Salon of the Champs Elysees was, the Paris correspondent of the Daily News says, as follows:—At the first ballot, out of 276 votes, 44 were for M. Constant, 41 for M. Henner, and 41 for M. Rochegrosse; at the second ballot, out of 306 votes, 103 were for M. Constant, 79 for M. Henner, and 39 for M. Rochegrosse. As there was no absolute majority the medal was then awarded. M. Alfred Boucher obtained the medal of honour for sculpture. The work which won it is catalogued "A la Terre."

FATHER MATHEW has long since gone to his rest, and Mr. Gough's stirring oratory is for ever silent; but in the United States there is an apostle of temperance far more potent than either of these. It is the great American railroad system. The American railway companies employ 689,912 persons, not counting those who mine the coal and iron, make the rails or locomotives, or build the cars and carriages used by the road. The freight and passenger traffic of the country is practically controlled by 600 of these corporations, and of these 600 no fewer than 375 absolutely prohibit the use of intoxicating liquors by their employes. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, moreover, uses its influence in the same direction. "Whenever a member of the order is known to be dissipated," says Mr. Arthur, long the head of the organization, "we not only expel or suspend him, but notify his employers."

"HOT water for cows" is the maxim of the French dairy farmers in the department of Finisterre. They claim to have proved by experiments that when cows drink hot water they yield one-third more milk than when they are refreshed with cold water only. Caution must, of course, be observed in adopting the new system. Avaricious dairymen must beware of scalding the throats of their cows in their haste to avail themselves of this discovery, which is vouched for by the Consul at Brest. The proportions, we are told, are half a pail of boiling water to half a pail of cold.

M. WECKERLIN, the librarian of the Paris Conservatoire, has just acquired the M.S. orchestral score of Rossini's opera "Zelmira," a work written for Naples in 1822, but now practically forgotten. The libretto is based upon Du Belloy's tragedy "Zelmire," and for the music Rossini is said to have received the by no means extravagant remuneration of rather less than 40*l.*

By the aid of the electric light, the Botanical Mission despatched some months since by the authorities of Kew to the West Indies, were extricated from an embarrassing dilemma. They had with them a number of Wardian cases containing vine cuttings and Gambier plants which it was deemed very desirable to introduce into the islands; but, unfortunately, cold weather set in, and the efforts to convey these tender plants, which had so often ended in failure, threatened once more to result in disappointment. The difficulty was that if kept on deck they would be inevitably destroyed by the low temperature; while if taken below, the absence of light, which is so necessary to the existence of the delicate Gambier plants, was almost certain to be equally fatal. Under these circumstances it occurred to Mr. Morris to avail himself of the electric light, of which there was an abundance aboard the Atrato. The experiment proved in every way successful. Mr. Morris expresses the opinion that the use of the electric light for the safe passage of valuable plants during the winter months, is capable of being greatly extended.

THE run of Ivanhoe at the Royal English Opera, now just over the 100th night, has been a complete success, it is stated on the best authority, from a pecuniary point of view, and should the opera run during the season, as it doubtless will, either through each week or alternately with another work there will be a large balance of profit on the ledger of the enterprising Mr. D'Oyly Carte. No rehearsals of any new work have as yet taken place though the new scenery for La Basoche is on the stocks, and the costumers have received certain orders. It is more than probable that the next work will not be on such an ambitious scale as regards chorus and orchestra, but the performances will not be thereby injured, as the forces mustered nightly for Ivanhoe have been at times almost too powerful, and have tasked all the resources of Mr. Ernest Ford and Mr. Collier.

A PRISONER in the penitentiary of the city of Erfurt, suffering from blood-poisoning and thinking his last hour had come, has just made a confession to the effect that he is the long-sought-for German Jack the Ripper, who, on Good Friday of 1890 butchered a woman of bad character in the barrack grounds of Erfurt. He says that three other men and one woman assisted him in the "job," which was executed according to descriptions of the London ripper murders. One of the men implicated, a farmer named Polaresk, living at Ilversgehaten, has been arrested. The others who heard of the warrants out for their arrest have escaped, but are being pursued by the police. The farmer was formerly a butcher. He has a large family and up to the present time has borne a good reputation.

OF Miss Martineau, Charlotte Bronte, in the Williams correspondence, says: "She is sometimes absolute, though quite unconsciously so; but she is likewise kind, with an affection at once abrupt and constant, whose sincerity you cannot doubt. It was delightful to sit near her in the evenings, and hear her converse—myself mute. She speaks with what seems to me a wonderful fluency and eloquence. Her animal spirits are as unflagging as her intellectual powers." Charlotte Brontes's estimate of Miss Austen will not command general assent, but it is interesting as coming from her. She writes: "Her business is not half as much with the human heart as with the human eyes, mouth, hands, and feet. What sees keenly, speaks aptly, moves flexibly, it suits her to study; but what throbs fast and full, though hidden, what the blood rushes through, what is the unseen seat of life, and the sentient target of death—this Miss Austen ignores."

THE rod has apparently had its day in the girls industrial schools. Such is the fiat of the Local Government Board addressed to the Industrial Schools Committee at Kirkdale, Lancashire. It is to be presumed that the regulation which renders the infliction of corporal punishment illegal is general, and that it will apply equally to the workhouse schools, which are also under the Board's inspection. At Kirkdale Industrial School there are 259 girls. It seems that corporal punishment has not been usual in this establishment, nevertheless a member of the Kirkdale Board expressed a fear that the girls might "become unruly" if they knew that canes and rods were no longer kept in reserve. This gentleman thought it would be advisable to keep the matter from the knowledge of the girls in the school; but the Chairman was inclined to think that this would be impracticable, and he is probably right.

THE latest American atrocity is the "sleep fasting contest," in which a number of idiotic people try which can stay awake longest. A recent show of this sort at San Francisco ended in W. C. Woodford, the only competitor who remained awake, being forced to retire by the management, the physician having declared him in danger of losing his reason. Woodford had been without sleep for 158 hours and 48 minutes when finally compelled to close his eyes. For this performance he is rewarded by £20 and the "championship" in this branch of sport, the previous record being 144 hours and 20 minutes, at Detroit. The men who took the second and third prizes (£10 and £5) had given in after 95 hours. It is said that Woodford will now, thanks to the interference of the management, continue sane. That means, we suppose, as sane as he was before.

IT is but seldom that an Englishman achieves eminence both as author and sailor. We do not remember an instance of note since Marryat. M. Pierre Loti, who elected to the Academy, is a lieutenant in the French navy, and in that capacity he has been a great traveller. At one time M. Loti passed a whole year at Stamboul, and was so delighted with his stay there that he almost resolved to spend the remainder of his life amid Turkish surroundings. He carried his admiration so far as to learn the language and to wear the national costume. He also lived in a Turkish home with his Turkish love Aziyade. Five years ago Loti married, and has since remained at Rochefort, occasionally publishing a book. Much of his house is furnished and arranged in Eastern style. The author was born in 1850. He is so well known as Pierre Loti that the reader is apt to forget that his real name is Julien Viaud.

THE HILL-MEN AROUND MANIPUR.

MR. C. N. BARHAM, writing in the National Review, thus deals with the hill tribes in the neighbourhood of Manipur:—

The history of our relations with these peculiar people, extending, as it does, over sixty years, has been one long, weary, and depressing story of insults, outrages, and cold-blooded murders. On their side, that is. We have met these by concessions, forgiveness, and an almost angelic generosity. Hitherto to little purpose. The ruling Rajah has been taken under our protection, hence the present emeute. The political agents have found their position anything but a bed of roses. Yet the condition of the country has improved since the old times, when the villages were continually being looted and burned by the Burmese. Who are these people? They are not tribesmen, far less are they a nation. They usually designate themselves by the name of the village to which they belong; although, in rare instances, a specific name may be applied to a group of villages. This being so, it is not surprising that the Press has sometimes fallen into error in its attempts to furnish much-needed information when little is available. No one ought to mention Indian affairs except with map in hand. This rule is not being observed; or, if it is, the maps are old ones. Out-of-date maps of Assam show the hills divided into districts, the names of which are supposed to be tribal. This is an error, therefore the maps in question are practically useless. It is true that, when Assam Rajahs ruled the hills, they divided the villages into duars, and arbitrarily named them. At the same time these designations were unknown to, or ignored by, the Hill-men themselves.

Although the country is peopled by races exceedingly diverse from one another, the character of the territory is much the same throughout. The hills run parallel to each other, north-east and south-west, in a succession of ridges. These increase in height, from the foot-hills adjacent to the plains, until they attain an altitude of 2,000 feet. This is not exceeded until the lofty chain which overlooks Burmah is reached. This, at Saramothi, rises into a peak of nearly 13,000 feet. In common with hilly regions, wood and water abound. In the loftier hills roads have been constructed with considerable skill. There is gold in the rivers, but whether in sufficient quantities to pay for the working is doubtful.

POPULATION.

The country is, as a whole, densely populated. From the higher peaks in Angami country as many as one hundred villages, some of which contain nearly a thousand houses, may be seen at once. The inhabitants are a fine race, the men averaging 5 feet 10 inches in height, and are fully physically developed. Those who belong to the villages about Manipur remind one somewhat of our own Highlanders, in that they are kilted. Throughout this part of the country, when a man becomes a warrior and has taken heads, he acquires the right to decorate his kilt with three rows of cowries; or, if very brave, four rows. In the immediate neighbourhood of Manipur, however, cowries are worn indifferently, without any signification of heroism. Two or three cotton or bark home-spun cloths are worn loosely over the shoulders. In time of war these are worn one across the breast and knotted over the shoulder, the other bound around the waist, with its ample folds serving as pockets. When engaged in a predatory exoedition the men wear a headdress of bear's hair, surmounted by three or five long feathers, which imparts to them a formidable appearance. The weapons indigenous to the country are (1) spears. The heads of these are of iron. The shafts, from four to five and a-half feet in length, are ornamented with hair. Every fighting man carries two of these, one for casting, the other for use at close quarters. Great care is taken of these weapons. A Hillman would never dream of leaving his spear leaning against a support; it is either fixed upright in the ground or suspended perpendicularly, to keep it perfectly straight. (2) The dao. This is a species of bill, the blade of which is eighteen inches in length and single-edged. It is worn at the back in a wooden sheath. (3) The shield. This is very large; being from five to six feet in height, and two feet broad at the top, tapering downwards to less than one foot. It is made of bamboo matting, covered with bear or tiger skin, or, in rare cases, with scarlet cloth. The ornamentation is somewhat elaborate, consisting, as it does, of pieces of bear-skin cut to represent the heads of slain enemies, horns of cane, and fringes of white feathers, together with tresses of hair and a scarlet plume. In addition to these the villagers possess stands of fire-arms. The Manipuris themselves, who are not really Hill-men, have also artillery, which they can use, as we have learned to our cost. That these offenders against the majesty of British law will be punished, is certain. That it will be easy is by no means certain, is probable. Hill warfare is proverbially difficult. Even Manipur is not easy of access; far less are its villages. These latter are built on commanding positions, and are, as a rule, strongly fortified. Stockades, ditches stuck full of blades of fire-hardened bamboo, five or six feet in length, and loop-holed walls constitute the usual defences. In addition to these the hill-sides are scarped and planted with bamboo-blades, which are capable of inflicting a severe wound. Deep pitfalls line the approach by which a foe is expected. The entrance to a village is by a tortuous lane, confined between high banks, along which only one man can pass at a time; thus preventing all possibility of carrying the place by storm. Nor will the evil pass with the defeat which we shall, some time, certainly inflict on these turbulent races. Their lasting difficulty is intensified by the unforgiving disposition of the hill-men. Like the Corsicans, they have their vendetta. It is an article of faith with them that blood can only be wiped out by blood. So, even if defeated, they will simply sullenly bide their time, waiting for the hour of revenge, which will arrive sooner or later. Whenever it does, the innocent will almost certainly suffer, as the murderers will strike at any near or fancied representative, however remote, of jarinhoo Government.

INTERNECINE WARFARE.

In their internecine warfare, which is almost continuous, challenges are occasionally sent to particular villages. These are sometimes emblematic; consisting, in some instances, of a piece of charred wood, a chilli, and a bullet or a spear, tied together. The wood is intended to indicate that the village will be burnt; the weapon the scourge which will be employed; and the chilli the sharpness of the punishment to be inflicted. It would be interesting to learn whether Mr. Quinton received any intimation of this kind. It is possible that before our soldiers get to close quarters with the enemy, they will see the latter "turn tail." Let them not be deceived. Turning tail is a different thing with the hill-men to what it is with us. The inhabitants of one group of villages, the Rengmah, are noticeable for wearing a caudal appendage. This, of course, is not natural. It is fashioned of wood, eighteen inches long, curved upwards, tapering to a point. This is fitted to the back, being suspended from the shoulders, and secured in position by a sash which is tied tightly round the waist. This singular appendage is worn in battle, and is intended to signify defiance. The wearers turn their backs towards the adversary, and, by balancing the body alternately on either leg, wag the tail defiantly in his very face. Young men occupy a "morang," a kind of bachelors' quarters. In some large villages there are two or three of these. Near to this will be a large open shed, in which the big drum is kept. This is formed from the trunk of a tree hollowed out, and carved and painted in front, and adorned at the nether end with a tail. It is beaten with double-headed clubs, or by letting a massive piece of wood fall upon it. This drum is beaten on festive occasions. It also summons the villagers together for war. When an attack is expected, the drum is beaten at short intervals during the night, intimating that the inhabitants are on the alert.

How do The people live?

The houses of the Angamy are lofty and roomy, with high-pitched gables, the eaves coming nearly to the ground. This is a necessary precaution against high winds. The front walls of the houses are formed of planks cut out of a single tree. The thatches of grass, or palm-leaves, project several feet, forming a shelter for cattle-pens. In some villages each house is surrounded by a stone wall, forming an inclosure for cattle and pigs. In the front room grain is stored in mighty baskets, while in the inner room planks for sitting and sleeping upon are arranged round the capacious mud hearth. The small back-room is the most sacred, the sanctum, in fact. Here is kept the dzu tub, the most important piece of furniture in a Hill-man's dwelling. The dzu is a kind of beer, with intoxicating properties, made from rice and certain wild herbs. Men, women, and children drink it freely from morning until night. Some tribes, as the Lhotas, Assiringias, and others, raise the house on bamboo piles. That is the back; the front rests upon the ground. The people in the Sibsagor district construct houses with eaves touching one another, and projecting front gables which often so overlap that, on the brightest day, the streets are wrapped in gloom. These have a peculiar custom of adorning the grinning skulls of slain foes with horns either of animals or formed from wood.

The women, especially the Angami, are taller than those of most Hill races, and are not unpleasantly dark-complexioned. In youth they are exceedingly attractive; but the rough life they live, and the hardships to which they are constantly exposed, soon destroy all beauty. When young the head is shaved. After marriage the hair is allowed to grow long. It is then braided and tied in a knot at the back of the head. The dress consists of a small dark-coloured petticoat, a broad cloth which covers the back and breasts, and an outer wrap. Weaving, grain-pounding, and much of the field-work is done by the women. Hatagoria women are remarkable for their beauty and grace, which they retain even after middle age. The Rengmahs, Sehmahs, and some other villages suffer from that common scourge of mountain districts, goitre. In certain villages adjoining these the natives go naked; but, even among these people, women are seldom seen in a state of nudity. Marriage and divorce are simple, the latter often following closely upon the heels of the former. Polygamy is not practised. Men may marry their deceased wife's sisters, and even their brothers' widows; but cousins are forbidden to marry. Divorce necessitates a division of all property held in common, such as corn or furniture, and, which is an improvement upon our custom, of all property acquired since marriage. Upon the death of a father, all the property, excepting the house, is equally divided among the sons; the youngest always receives the house in addition to his share. Neither the widow nor the daughters can claim anything except their clothes and ornaments. The bodies of the dead are wrapped in mats and arranged upon platforms, which are then fenced and roofed in. The personal weapons, clothes, and decoration of the deceased are placed by the body or on the fence. These, with the domestic utensils, are so mutilated as "to kill them," that they may accompany him into the other world, if such there be for him. As these dead bodies are placed by the roadside, travelling is not always pleasant. This practice, although common, is not uniform. In some places the bodies are wrapped in mats, laid in wooden cradles, and fixed in the upper branches of trees immediately beyond the villages. In others they are placed in "maichans" inside small houses, with an end of the coffin, it may be, projecting through the front of the building. Ever and anon huge heaps of stones, or monoliths, may be observed among the hills. These strike the traveller with surprise. They are, however, of simple origin, being either monumental or commemorative of some great feast. The stones, which are often extremely large, are dragged up into their place on sledges, which are drawn, it may be, by hundreds of willing hands. Having been placed in position some leaves are laid upon the top of them as an offering; a libation is poured over these; and the ceremony is complete.

NO FORM OF GOVERNMENT.

The Hill-men, as a race, have no settled form of government. Their Rajahs have nominal rather than practical power over them, reigning rather than governing. They are directly under the orders of the head-men of the respective villages, who are chosen for their wealth, courage, diplomatic skill, or some property which commends them. The orders of these leaders are obeyed if they are in accord with the views of the community; if otherwise, they are not. The head-man is simply the first among his equals, and that only, it may be, for the time. With these undisciplined people every man is his own master, and makes his own quarrel good. Such, in brief, are some of our present enemies. The opening game of the rubber has been scored against us. We shall win in the long run, of course; but the end is not yet. What lies immediately before us may be inferred from what occurred in the Jaipur district in 1875. In February of that year, within the short space of five minutes, a survey party, under Captain Badgley, was attacked; and out of one hundred and ninety-seven men, Lieutenant Holcombe and eighty men were slain, and fifty-one others wounded. The survivors only escaped after a forced march of four days through the hills, during and through which, to their undying honour, they carried their wounded with them. This is only one of innumerable incidents of heroism which stud the fire-scorched, blood-stained annals of our ceaseless wars.

BROWNING'S LIFE AND LETTERS.

WHAT may fairly be described as the authorised biography of Robert Browning made its appearance on the 28th ult., with the imprimature of Messrs. Smith, Elder, and Co. It is the work of Mrs. Sutherland Orr, an intimate friend of the poet, who has had the invaluable assistance of the poet's sister, as well as the advantage of many contributions from other original sources. The work takes the form of a single volume, extending to 450 pages (with a capital portrait); and to many, no doubt, it will seem all too meagre a record of a man so distinguished and well-known. Browning's life, however, was comparatively uneventful, and in this instance there appears to have been no such wealth of private correspondence to draw upon as those who have written lives of poets have made the subject of very bulky memoirs.

It is in regard to the parentage and early life of Mr. Browning that this biography, perhaps, will be found freshest and most interesting. It will surprise no one to learn that the poet had a somewhat remarkable father, who to a "passion" for reading added an "extraordinary" power of versifying, and a love of art which at one time induced him to think of it as a profession. In the poet these characteristics reappeared, intensified and, of course, modified. His mother was "a delicate woman, very anæmic during her later years, and a martyr to neuralgia;" and Mrs. Orr is inclined to think that the father's "placid intellectual powers required for their transmutation into poetic genius just this infusion of a vital element not only charged with other racial and individual qualities, but physically and morally more nearly allied to pain." Of Browning's childhood, it is noted that "he extemporised verse aloud while walking round and round the dinning-room table, supporting himself by his hands, when he was still so small that his head was scarcely above it." His imaginative temperament early showed itself. As a boy he read "omnivorously, though certainly not without guidance." His father's house, was, it seems, literally crammed with books, many of them being rare first editions, in which the poet first made acquaintance with literary masterpieces. Byron, we read, was his "chief poetic master" in those days:—

"He never ceased to honour him as the one poet who combined a constructive imagination with the more technical qualities of his art; and the result of this period of æsthetic training was a volume of short poems, produced, we are told, when he was only twelve in which the Byronic influence was predominant."

This volume was called "Incondita"; it was never printed, and no trace of its contents, apparently, now exist. Its fault, curiously enough, "seems to have lain in a direction of too great exuberance of language and too little wealth of thought"—a failing out of which the poet was certainly destined to grow. After Byron in the young writer's affections, came Shelley and Keats; but Mrs. Orr tells us "it would be a great mistake to impute to either any important influence upon his genius."

It will be news, though not a surprise, to many, that his education included instruction in the science of music. As a result of this, "he wrote songs which he himself sang," and his settings, all of which were subsequently destroyed, were, Mrs. Orr has heard, "very spirited." In his eighteenth year he attended Greek classes at London University, and it was at this time that his choice of poetry as a profession was form

I would as soon think of going a voyage without my tooth-brush as my bottle of ENO'S "FRUIT SALT."—Yours, &c., W. J. B., British Guiana, Dec. 5, 1878.

HOT COUNTRIES.—ACIDITY OF STOMACH.—"I have used ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT,' and know it not alone to be excellent, but really invaluable. Especially in the hot countries of the East, where Acidity of the Stomach, Biliousness, and Fevers are so common."—J. M. PEEBLES, M.D., Author of Around the World, Travels in Polynesia, China, India, Arabia, Egypt, &c., &c.

IN CENTRE OF AFRICA WITHOUT ANY MEDICAL MAN.—"Natives came with all manner of diseases. One day we had a man that was said to be mad. Whether mad or not, he was far from well, and I gave him a large dose of ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT.' The poor fellow came back next morning to tell us that he was better. His breath was no longer offensive, and he looked cheerful. We were sorry when our supply of 'FRUIT SALT' was done; it was a favourite, both with natives and Europeans, and is much used along the malarious coasts."—Africana, by Rev. DUFF MACDONALD, M.A., B.D., Vol. II., p. 207.

"Ring out old shapes of foul disease,
Ring out the narrowing lust of gold,
Ring out the thousand wars of old,
Ring in the thousand years of peace."—Tennyson.

IMPORTANT TO ALL.

What every Travelling Trunk and every Household in the World ought to contain:—A Bottle of

ENO'S "FRUIT SALT,"

A Most Refreshing, Cooling, and Invigorating Beverage.

NO TRAVELLER SHOULD LEAVE HOME without a supply, for by its use the most dangerous forms of FEVERS, BLOOD POISONS, &c., are prevented and cured. It is, in truth, a FAMILY MEDICINE CHEST in the simplest yet most potent form. Instead of being lowering to the system, this preparation is, in the highest degree, invigorating. Its effect in relieving thirst, giving tone to the system, and aiding digestion, is most striking.

IT IS THE BEST PREVENTIVE AND CURE FOR

Giddiness.	Feverishness.
Thirst, &c.	Unnatural Excitement.
Impure Blood.	Errors in Diet.
Heartburn.	Liver Derangements.

PRESERVING AND RESTORING HEALTH.—ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" acts as simply, yet just as powerfully, on the animal system as sunshine does on the vegetable world. It has a natural action on the organs of digestion, absorption, circulation, respiration, secretion, and excretion, and removes all impurities, thus preserving and restoring health.

TO PARENTS.—This preparation is invaluable in the nursery as a gentle laxative: it is pleasant to the taste, and much superior to senna or other nauseous drugs; it corrects the ill effects of over-eating or exhaustion, it is extremely beneficial in any feverishness or heat of the skin. The bowels ought to be kept free by the "FRUIT SALT" for a month or six weeks after eruptive diseases, as Measles, Scarlet Fever, Chicken-pox, Small-pox, and all Fevers or Infectious Diseases, &c.; for its use frees the system of the "dregs."

"THOUSANDS OF MILES IN INDIA."—ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" I have found of the utmost value in the hot and dry seasons, also in the monsoons. I have travelled thousands of miles in India, and in all the various changes of climate I have always found ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" the most refreshing beverage, especially after long heavy marches and other fatiguing duties to which the British soldier of late has been exposed. My dear wife, during her travail, found it to be the most useful thing that could be obtained. Yours, &c., a Warder, Central Military Prison, Poonah. Jan. 30, 1884.

STIMULANTS and insufficient amount of exercise frequently derange the liver. ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" is peculiarly adapted for any constitutional weakness of the liver. A world of woe is avoided by those who keep and use ENO'S "FRUIT SALT."—"All our customers for ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT' would not be without it upon any consideration, they having received so much benefit from it."—WOOD BROTHERS, Chemists, Jersey, 1878."

SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHER SALINES.—"Dear Sir,—Having been in the habit of taking your 'FRUIT SALT' for many years, I think it only right to tell you that I consider it a most invaluable medicine, and far superior to all other saline mixtures. I am never without a bottle of it in the house, as I find it possesses three most desirable qualities, namely, it is pleasant to the taste, promptly efficacious, and leaves no unpleasant after-effects.—A DEVONSHIRE LADY.—Jan. 25, 1889."

CAUTION.—Examine each bottle and see that the Capsule is marked ENO'S "FRUIT SALT." Without it you have been imposed on by a WORTHLESS IMITATION. Sold by all Chemists.

PREPARED ONLY AT ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" WORKS, POMEROY STREET, NEW CROSS ROAD, LONDON, BY J. C. ENO'S PATENT.

THE WORLD'S BEST LEMON SQUEEZER

Is to the old-fashioned article what the Railway is to the Dak Gharry.

No bitter from the rind, as it acts on the pulp only. Made of glass it is kept clean as easily as a tumbler. Almost instantaneous in action, a child can use it without soiling the hands.

TO USE THE MODERN LEMON JUICE EXTRACTOR—

Set it upon a tumbler as shown in sketch, cut the lemon in half, place the half lemon upon the points and press downwards, slightly twisting it. The ribs easily enter the pulp, and the juice pours down through the openings into the tumbler. The openings are so small that the pips cannot pass.

Once tried it will supersede all old-fashioned appliances. Over a million sold already. Patented in India and all leading countries. It is to be had at most Stores in India. Should you be unable to obtain one, the Proprietor will send one post free to any part of India on receipt of 2s., or 6 for 10/4.

KNIGHT OF THE ORDER OF LEOPOLD OF BELGIUM

KNIGHT OF THE LEGION OF HONOUR

LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL

THE PUREST. THE MOST PALATABLE. THE MOST DIGESTIBLE. THE MOST EFFICACIOUS.

Incontestably proved by Thirty Years' Medical Experience to be

The only Cod Liver Oil which produces the full curative effects in

CONSUMPTION AND DISEASES OF THE CHEST, THROAT AFFECTIONS, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, WASTING DISEASES OF CHILDREN, RICKETS, AND ALL SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

SIR G. DUNCAN GIBB, Bart., M.D.,
Physician to the Westminster Hospital.

"The value of DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL as a therapeutic agent in a number of diseases, chiefly of an exhaustive character, has been admitted by the world of medicine; but, in addition, I have found it a remedy of great power in the treatment of many Affections of the Throat and Larynx, especially in Consumption of the latter, where it will sustain life when everything else fails."

DR. SINCLAIR COGHILL,
Physician to the Royal National Hospital for Consumption, Ventnor.

"I have convinced myself that in Tubercular and the various forms of Strumous Disease, DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL possesses greater therapeutic efficacy than any other Cod Liver Oil with which I am acquainted. It was especially noted, in a large number of cases in which the patients protested they had never been able to retain or digest other Cod Liver Oil, that DR. DE JONGH'S OIL was not only tolerated, but taken readily, and with marked benefit."

JOSEPH J. POPE, Esq., M.R.C.S.,
Late Staff Surgeon, Army, Professor of Hygiene, Birkbeck Institution, London.

"I found during my Indian experience that the worth and character of DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL remained unchanged by tropical heat or foreign climate, and it was, from its uniformity of character, particularly adapted for long-continued administration. The value of 'hydro-carbons' in all debilitated states of the system is now becoming thoroughly recognized; and it is, without doubt, from the animal oils and fats, rather than from their vegetable substitutes, that we may hope to derive the surest benefit. The Oil of DR. DE JONGH places in everyone's reach a reliable and valuable remedy, one that cannot be too widely recognized."

DR. R. G. CROFT,
Author of "Handbook for the Nursery."

"DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is almost a specific in many of the Diseases peculiar to Infancy and Childhood, and I have seen marked benefit produced by its use. Patients prefer it to the Pale Oils, and are able to retain it more comfortably."
